High incidence ...

Moyobamba is situated in the Amazon Basin side of the Andes in the country of Peru. There is a very high incidence of cleft palate and cleft lip problems in this very large jungle area. Here, the Clinica San Lucas is helping children to smile by carrying out simple operations which transform their lives.

£250 an operation ...

Once a year a surgeon and his team from Lima, capital of Peru, are flown over the Andes to Moyobamba. They are paid travelling costs and a token payment for the work they do. Each operation averages around £250.

Some children require a second operation and usually require extensive dental treatment. There are normally 40 to 50 children who receive the operation each year.

Traumatised ...

The operations are only part of the solution. The traumatised children are often told not to come to school even after they have had their operation because their speech is still affected and the teachers say they can't understand them. Also, after years of being ostracised by their communities they often need psychological help. Therefore the clinic now supports a speech therapist / psychologist to help integrate them back into society with loving support.

The clinic receives no funding for the operations and is totally dependent on our generosity in helping transform precious lives.
